NUHS Tribute Awards Ceremony 2022

The NUHS Tribute Awards Ceremony is held to recognise NUHS staff who have made outstanding contributions to patient care, research or education in our academic health system. These colleagues embody our NUHS mission, vision and values. On this day, we honour our healthcare professionals and administrators for the difference they make to NUHS and Singapore's healthcare landscape and their role in shaping medicine and transforming care.

NUHS Award

A series of overlapping, wavy, golden-brown lines that create a sense of movement and depth across the lower half of the page.

The NUHS Award is nominated by the Executive Group of NUHS. It is a special mention and the most prestigious award by NUHS given to healthcare professionals who have made a transformational impact on healthcare in Singapore and demonstrated exemplary leadership.

Team Award

This award recognises teams that have undertaken a clinical quality or practice improvement project that has a strong research element in knowledge translation, and has contributed significantly to bridging the gap between knowledge and practice.

PACE-D

The effective measures in PACE-D have been incorporated into the existing teamlet care model as routine interventions since the programme's implementation in March 2019, demonstrating its feasibility and sustainability.

Dr Tan Wee Hian (Team Leader)

Head, Pioneer Polyclinic

Family Physician, Consultant, National University Polyclinics

Senior Consultant, Division of Endocrinology, Department of Medicine, National University Hospital

Assistant Professor, Department of Medicine, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Dr Victor Loh Weng Keong

Associate Professor, Division of Family Medicine, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Dr Choong Shoon Thai

Family Physician, Principal Staff, National University Polyclinics

Based upon elements that are key to the success of chronic disease management including person-centredness, shared decision making and support for self-management, PACE-D transforms traditional clinic consultations into meaningful conversations for people living with diabetes. To achieve this, the team extended the invitation to healthcare providers in the NUP to adopt a truly person-centred paradigm, equipped them with skills essential to hold such conversations through training programmes, and made important changes in systems processes to create the platform that allows these meaningful conversations to occur. In addition to improved health outcomes and patient experience, the overall cost of healthcare utilisation (Emergency Department attendances, hospitalisations and bill sizes) of patients undergoing PACE-D is evaluated. These measures have proven to be feasible and sustainable, and will be incorporated into the existing teamlet care model as routine interventions.

Additional measures are in the pipeline to ensure PACE-D remains cost-effective in the long run. These include automation of the care planning letter preparation and integrating it into the OneNUHS app to enhance patient experience and reduce manpower requirements, empowering more members in the care teams to conduct these conversations, and enhanced integration with community resources in our regional health system. This beneficial person-centred care model can be readily applied to the management of other long-term conditions beyond diabetes.

CAR-T

The NUHS team has successfully harnessed the potency of CAR-T cells to cure patients with leukaemia resistant to chemotherapy, who otherwise would have been considered incurable.

Associate Professor Allen Yeoh Eng Juh (Team Leader)

Head and Senior Consultant, Division of Paediatric Haematology and Oncology, Department of Paediatrics, Khoo Teck Puat - National University Children's Medical Institute, National University Hospital

Head and Senior Consultant, Division of Paediatric Haematology-Oncology, National University Cancer Institute, Singapore

Associate Professor, Department of Paediatrics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Viva-Goh Foundation Associate Professor, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Dr Elaine Coustan-Smith

Principal Research Scientist, Department of Paediatrics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Dr Bernice Oh Ling Zhi

Consultant, Division of Paediatric Haematology and Oncology, Department of Paediatrics, Khoo Teck Puat - National University Children's Medical Institute, National University Hospital

Senior Lecturer, Department of Paediatrics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Senior Consultant, Division of Haematology, Department of Haematology-Oncology, National University Cancer Institute, Singapore

Senior Consultant, Department of Haematology, Ng Teng Fong General Hospital

Assistant Professor, Department of Medicine, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

For decades, scientists and physicians have pursued the goal of exploiting the immune system to fight cancer. Only in the last few years have compelling clinical data emerged that supports this vision. To harness the patient's immune cells against blood cancer, Professor Dario Campana from the NUS Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine developed a suite of chimeric antigen receptor (CAR) T-cell technologies which has demonstrated outstanding effectiveness in killing leukaemia cells with significantly reduced toxicity compared to conventional high-dose chemotherapy and bone marrow transplantation (BMT).

The NUHS team has successfully harnessed the potency of CAR-T cells to cure patients who otherwise would have been considered incurable because of leukaemia resistant to chemotherapy. In addition, they have developed accurate methods to quantify and detect sub-microscopic disease, known as minimal residual disease (MRD). MRD monitoring of the treatment response allows physicians to identify patients resistant to conventional chemotherapy and BMT, enabling the early use of CAR-T cell therapy, which is curative with fewer side effects.

Liver Transplant

The liver transplant team from the National University Centre for Organ Transplantation has achieved better-than-international benchmarks for patient and graft survival for living donor and deceased donor liver transplants, and demonstrated its ability to perform complex liver transplants.

Associate Professor Shridhar Iyer

(Team Leader)

Senior Consultant, Division of Hepatobiliary and Pancreatic Surgery, Department of Surgery, National University Hospital

Surgical Director and Senior Consultant, Adult Liver Transplantation Programme, National University Centre for Organ Transplantation, National University Hospital

Senior Consultant, Division of Surgical Oncology (Hepatobiliary and Pancreatic Surgery), National University Cancer Institute, Singapore

Associate Professor, Department of Surgery, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Associate Professor Alfred Kow Wei Chieh

Head and Senior Consultant, Division of Hepatobiliary and Pancreatic Surgery, Department of Surgery, National University Hospital

Senior Consultant, Adult Liver Transplantation Programme, National University Centre for Organ Transplantation, National University Hospital

Senior Consultant, Division of Surgical Oncology, National University Cancer Institute, Singapore
Assistant Dean, Dean's Office (Medicine), Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Associate Professor, Department of Surgery, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Associate Professor Glenn Kunnath Bonney

Consultant, Division of Hepatobiliary and Pancreatic Surgery, Department of Surgery, National University Hospital

Consultant, Adult Liver Transplantation Programme, National University Centre for Organ Transplantation, National University Hospital

Consultant, Adult Pancreas Transplantation Programme, National University Centre for Organ Transplantation, National University Hospital

Consultant, Division of Surgical Oncology (Hepatobiliary and Pancreatic Surgery), National University Cancer Institute, Singapore

Associate Professor, Department of Surgery, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Assistant Professor Lee Guan Huei

Head and Senior Consultant, Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology, Department of Medicine, National University Hospital

Assistant Professor, Department of Medicine, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

The National University Centre for Organ Transplantation (NUCOT) is one of two Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education International (ACGME-I) accredited surgery programmes in Singapore with a transplantation component, and established international liver transplant collaborations with India, Indonesia, the Philippines, the United Arab Emirates and the United Kingdom. Its researchers have published over 45 papers in high-impact journals such as Transplantation, Journal of Hepatology, The Lancet Gastroenterology and Hepatology, Clinical Gastroenterology and Hepatology, and Gut.

The NUCOT liver transplant team has achieved better-than-international benchmarks for patient and graft survival for living donor and deceased donor liver transplants, with published donor outcomes that are better than international benchmarks. The team has also demonstrated its ability to perform complex liver transplants such as Living Donor Liver Transplants (LDLT) in Portomesenteric Thrombosis, LDLT in Budd-Chiari Syndrome, multi-organ transplants, re-transplantation and the skills of retrieving different types of grafts.

Premature Baby Care

The team from the National University Hospital has achieved a significant milestone towards global standards, successfully reducing severe retinopathy in premature babies from 9.4% to 5.4% with the implementation of immediate corrective measures.

Associate Professor Zubair

Amin (Team Leader)

Head and Senior Consultant, Department of Neonatology, Khoo Teck Puat - National University Children's Medical Institute, National University Hospital

Associate Professor, Department of Paediatrics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Senior Consultant, Department of Neonatology, Khoo Teck Puat - National University Children's Medical Institute, National University Hospital

Assistant Professor, Department of Paediatrics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Assistant Professor, Department of Paediatrics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Ms Lee Soke Yee

Senior Nurse Clinician, Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, Department of Nursing, National University Hospital

The Premature Baby Care team at NUH cares for babies with an extensive range of services devoted to premature babies, high-risk cases, and babies with complex congenital anomalies. The team facilitates parental involvement in caring for babies and provides expertise in advanced ventilation, management of complex conditions, palliative care and bereavement support. Families continue to receive support after a baby's discharge.

To address the higher-than-expected rate of retinopathy of prematurity, the team instituted immediate corrective measures that reduced the rate from 9.4% to 5.4% in the first three quarters of 2021. Incorporating evidence-based medicine and embodying the spirit of continuous quality improvement, the team has harnessed its learnings in translational medicine to cross significant milestones benchmarked against global quality indicators.
